RABBI'S COLUMNSummer Time, Summer Reading: 5775

In a few weeks summer time will be upon us This is the time of year to slow down a bit and enjoy the little moments that make life pleasant, like lingering over breakfast with Linda, The NY Times and an extra cup of coffee. Another thing I love is to catch up on the books I've put aside for summer reading. I thought I'd share with you my list which is a combination of study, class preparation and entertainment.

The Trolley Problem, or Would You Throw the Fat Guy Off the Bridge? by Thomas Cathcart, 2013. A runaway trolley is racing toward 5 men who are tied to the track. Unless it is stopped, it will inevitably kill all 5 men. You are standing on a footbridge looking down on the unfolding disaster. However, a fat man, a stranger, is standing next to you on the bridge: If you push him off the bridge, he will freefall onto the path of the trolley and – although he will die – his chunky body will stop the trolley, saving 5 lives. Question: Would you throw the fat man off the bridge to save 5 lives? This philosophical conundrum challenges the deepest held notions of right and wrong and is a classic in the field of moral-ethical behavior.

The Road to Character, by David Brooks, 2015. David Brooks is one of the nation's leading writers and commentators whose regular columns in the op-ed section of the NY Times and elsewhere provide rich food for thought. His latest book blends psychology, politics, spirituality and personal experiences in a way that invites us to rethink our priorities to build rich inner lives marked by humility and moral depth.

Being Mortal, by Atul Gawande, 2014. Subtitled "Medicine and What Matters in the End," Atul Gawande, a practicing surgeon, reveals the struggles of his profession. He examines its ultimate limitations and failures – in his own practices as well as others' – as life draws to a close. He follows a hospice nurse on her rounds, a geriatrician in his clinic, and reformers turning nursing homes upside down. He shows how the ultimate goal is not a good death but a good life – all the way to the very end.

Rebbe, Joseph Telushkin, 2014. This book describes the life and teachings of Menachem M. Schneerson, arguably one of the most influential rabbis in modern history. Noted rabbi and widely published author, Joseph Telushkin offers a captivating portrait of the late Rabbi Menachem Mendel Schneerson, a monumental figure, who saw beyond the conventional boundaries of his Chabad-Lubavitch movement transforming it into the most dynamic and widespread organizations ever seen in the modern Jewish world.

The Frozen Rabbi, by Steve Stern, 2010. This is a novel that recounts how a 19th century-rabbi from a small Polish town ended up in a basement freezer in a suburban Memphis home at the end of the 20th century. It is a story of what happens when an impressionable teenage boy inadvertently thaws out the ancient man and brings him back to life! (I had this novel on last year's list, but never got to it. Having kept it on ice, I hope to read it this year.)

So that's my list. It is a well known distinction and a source of pride that Jews are called the "People of the Book." Somehow, we can't keep from reading and studying. It is my wish that you take the summer months to pick up a book and enjoy. It need not be of Jewish content, although I hope at least one book you might read speaks about Jewish history, concepts or values. Read a book, expand your horizons, but mostly: Enjoy!

Rabbi Ted Tsuruoka

Rabbi's Class: Introduction to the Dead Sea Scrolls Final Session—Thursday, June 4 at 7:30pm

Message from the Co-Presidents "What Do You Say?"

Temple Isaiah exemplifies the old adage -"two Jews, three opinions." Our congregants think about things and are eager to express opinions--about religion, politics, current events, history and the future. Discussion and the exchange of ideas has been an important part of Isaiah's past and remains one of the defining elements of our congregational life.

One discussion group existed even before Isaiah's founding and continued after its participants joined the then new congregation. The "Shabbat Fellowship" met monthly on a Saturday afternoon at a congregant's home. The meetings continued until about twelve years ago. It was a lay discussion group. The rabbi seldom, if ever attended. A topic to be discussed at the next session was selected at the end of each meeting, so the topic was known to all and members could think about what he or she wished to say, and even do research if so inclined. For whatever reason, the Shabbat Fellowship did not attract many new members or younger members who joined Isaiah over the years and it simply faded away.

But the desire to opine on a variety of subjects persists. Rabbi Tsuruoka leads a lively "Lunch and Learn" and an extensive schedule of evening classes on Tanach and contemporary Jewish subjects and offers a Torah study class each week. Class participation is encouraged and lively discourse is a frequent result.

Years ago, Isaiah had a book club and we have reestablished this stimulating endeavor. Since so many Isaiah members are ardent readers, the book club is an easy way to get to know fellow congregants while expanding your horizons. Helman likes to quote one of his grade school teachers, "We go to new places and meet interesting people through books."

Lastly, Helman's "Current Events" always involves a discussion of "views of the news" and hopefully reveals some new or less well known story that has eluded the headlines.

So, if you like to talk and listen, come participate and enjoy any of Isaiah's current discussions that have followed the example set by the former Shabbat Fellowship.

ARZA Election Result Information

As you are all aware the voting period for the US delegation to the World Zionist Congress came to a close on April 30th. The results have yet to be announced and we would like to share the following statement from the AZM explaining the delay:

"The 2015 elections to the World Zionist Congress is the first US Zionist election in which the process of creating a registration list and then voting was merged into one. Because the Area Elections Committee (whose job it is to determine and carry out the rules, regulations and procedures for the elections) decided to merge the registration and elections, the removal of duplicates has to now be done following the election.

On April 29 the AEC voted not to decrypt and calculate the results until it is satisfied that there is a valid list of voters. This was complicated by concern about potentially questionable registration practices (e.g. mass entry of registrations by list activists; credit card abuse). The Area Election Committee voted to create an independent panel (Election Commission) to review issues and complaints.

The target date for the AEC to hear from the commission is May 27. Once the AEC is ready to accept the voter registry as valid there will be remaining issues and challenges; however these can be adjudicated after we have election results. Our goal is to have results by early June."

We promise to keep you informed and updated as to the progress and announcement of the results. Many thanks again for all of your help and work towards our success.

Rabbi Josh Weinberg President, ARZA

[Please note: On some earlier Temple Isaiah Membership Dues forms that were sent out, the ARZA membership dues were listed as $36. They have been raised to $50 per family.]

"Painful Hope" Tuesday, June 2, 2015 8:15pm at Temple Israel of Great Neck 108 Old Mill Road, G.N. 11023

Please welcome a most unusual and refreshing twosome to Temple Israel of Great Neck at 8:15 PM. Rabbi Hanan Schlesinger is an Orthodox rabbi and teacher, and a passionate Zionist settler. Ali Abu Awwad is today a leading Palestinian activist teaching non-violent resistance and the author of Painful Hope. On June 2, Ali and Hanan will tell their personal stories and the intertwining of their stories.

Please RSVP to Jodi Engel at the Temple Israel Office at jengel@tign.org or 482-7800 ext. 1105

This event is co-sponsored by Temple Beth-El of Great Neck, Lake Success Jewish Center, Temple Isaiah of Great Neck, Sid Jacobson JCC and the Long Island Board of Rabbis.

Alan Birnbaum's Mitzvah Project: Bake Sale for Heifer International Friday Evening June 5th Before Services

For my bar mitzvah, I am raising money to help end hunger and poverty through the organization Heifer International. Their goal is to help people become independent by giving them animals to raise and breed on their own. I will be selling delicious baked goods before services on Friday, June 3rd from 7 to 8 PM. Money raised will be used for a family to have a goat and a healthcare worker kit. Donations of additional goods beforehand to sell would be greatly appreciated. Please leave word at the Temple Office or with Rabbi Tsuruoka: 487-5373.

Thank you, Alan Birnbaum (Bar Mitzvah 8/16/15)

The Middlesteins—by Jami Attenberg

This is a disturbing novel. Many readers look at it as the story of three generations of a dysfunctial family. If you look at three generations of any family, I'm sure you will find several oddballs. I believe this novel is speaking to us, the American people. Every day we are bombarded with ads about sinfully delicious food and diets which are sinlessly delicious. There are reality shows like "The Biggest Loser" and "Runway Model". How many cooking shows are on tv each day? As a nation, we are obsessed with: health food, natural food, spicey food, gluten-free food, chocolate, fast food, snacks, etc. Juxtaposed to all this food are the size zero and less models and girls who are imitating them.

The Middlesteins are certainly a troubled family. Edie hides in her food. Her husband, Richard, uses her weight as a doorway out of a relationship he helped to create. Robin, their daughter, turns from food and uses alcohol for comfort. Her brother and sister-in-law seek solace in pot.

I can understand why many readers will be uncomfortable while reading this. Instead of reading should they be walking on the treadmill. Should they be having a cookie with that cup of coffee? Is their hair thinning due to age or stress? Can they fit into their attire reserved for funerals? Have they allowed friends and family to become invisable? Will they show up for the funeral feast?

Membership Dues Form: June 1, 2015-May 31, 2016

Our Membership Dues policy is deeply rooted in the founding principles of our congregation which reflects an individual's financial responsibility to support the temple. It is considered the moral obligation of members to pay dues to the Temple to the fullest extent of their ability. Each member unit is routinely expected to pay as a minimum the full Sustaining Member amount. If, however, financial circumstances prevent this, your good-faith personal assessment will determine your dues obligation.
