RABBI'S COLUMN

By Rabbi Jerry Blum

As many of you know, in just a few days, I will be blessed by officiating at the wedding of my daughter and her fiancé. Of course being the father of the bride is such a joyful experience, and yet, with all the preparations, making of lists, keeping to schedules, and working with all the vendors and venues, the time before this, or any wedding becomes one of the most stressful times in one's life. Weddings are filled with joy, and yet the pre-wedding urgencies can reduce even the strongest participant to a pool of tears. Hardly what you'd call joyful and can begin to make you hate the process. With all the many things that can go wrong, (I can give you a list), and all the frustrations that go along with these moments, it's amazing that more people don't elope. The real downside here is, much of the joy and happiness of the moment gets lost, and our eyes, and hearts no longer see or feel anything but annoyance, and frustration. We forget that there are blessings hidden in all of these experiences. I know this has happened to me during this time, and it feels unsettling.

As I write this message, we, the Jewish community, are within a seven-week soul journey. It is the prelude to the High Holy Days, and it is a time of reflection, renewal and teshuvah. Teshuvah is often translated as atonement, but in this case, I see teshuvah as a returning to one's self, or a turning inward to a space that allows us to grow emotionally and spiritually. It becomes more of a state of being rather than a deed one must do. This state of mind allows us to see ourselves as clean slates year after year beginning with Rosh HaShanah, alive with personal freedom to try new and exciting things, and of course, notice the small but precious blessings that surround us every day.

The Mussar movement (the school of ethical thought) teaches about the concept of Hakarat haTov or, recognizing the good that is around us, but it can be simply defined as an "attitude of gratitude". Mussar teaches that gratitude is the ability to recognize the good in any situation, and to give thanks, but there are so many things that stand in the way of this. In the 11th century Mussar classic Duties of the Heart, Rabbi ibn Paquda teaches that there are three things that keep us from being grateful; 1) We become too occupied with material things. How much more "stuff" do we need? 2) We take things for granted, which means, we fail to recognize the bounty of everyday blessings, like a roof over our heads, food to eat and a generally safe environment in which we live. 3) We focus on the negative, meaning that we tend to focus on mistakes people make, and the small hurts we receive from loved ones, and don't notice the positives they do for us.

Perhaps one of the main keys to Teshuvah is adopting an attitude of Hakarat HaTov and recognizing the beautiful moments of personal growth that can be had through heartfelt and honest discussion with loved ones. Getting to a deeper level of relationships with those we love and begin to proactively seek out those small blessings that are sprinkled throughout our days and our lives.

*Rabbi ben Zoma said,
"Who is wise? The one who learns from everyone!
Who is mighty? The one who rules over themselves!
Who is rich? The one who is happy with what they've got!
Who is honored? The one who shows honor to others!" -Pirke Avot 4:1*

CANTOR'S COLUMN

ENTERING THE HOLY DAYS

By Cantor Leslie Friedlander

One of the most mysterious and stirring passages in the Torah is a brief incident between Moses and God when God's essence is established. Moses pleads with God to allow him to see God's Presence. In reply, God places Moses in the cleft of a rock and, shielding Moses' sight, allows Moses to see God's back as God passes by (Ex. 33:22).

The words God speaks to Moses at this moment (Ex. 34:6-7) are words that describe God's relationship to human beings and have become known as the "Thirteen Attributes of God." These two verses are the cornerstone of the Selichot service, the service of penitential prayers designed to awaken us to the significance of the High Holy Days that are said just days before Rosh Hashanah:

Adonai,
Adonai,
God
compassionate
and gracious,
slow to anger,
abounding in kindness
and faithfulness.
Extending kindness to the thousandth generation,
forgiving iniquity,
transgression,
and sin,
and granting pardon.

Although the words appear in our liturgy during the High Holy Days and at festivals, they don't exactly form a prayer – there is no petition, simply a description, in very human expressions, of God's qualities of mercy. We have these words as a model to show us how, through our own actions, we can be our best selves.

Experience an evening of learning, praying, beautiful words and moving music as we enter the Holy Days.

PRESIDENT'S COLUMN

By Steven Warshavsky

As many of you know, my mom passed away a few weeks ago. As I reflect on all the events during the week before and after her passing, one thing that sticks out in my mind is the wonderful support and caring I received from my temple community. It is a clear reminder to me why I love being a member of Temple Isaiah. Besides our members, both Rabbi Blum and Cantor Friedlander were so comforting and helpful in making both the funeral and shiva services beautiful. Many of my family members and friends commented to me about them both. We are all very lucky to have these two special people as part of our temple community.

As we were planning for the funeral, one thing that I was not prepared for was knowing my mother's and both of her parent's Hebrew names. Fortunately, my older cousin knew them all. I am sharing this with you so that you can learn from this too. To help you, Temple Isaiah is prepared to maintain a record of your Hebrew name along with any living parent's and children's names. You can send these names to Cathy Reibstein for safekeeping. If you don't have a Hebrew name and would like one, please talk with Rabbi Blum about it.

As I'm flipping my calendar from August to September (yes, I still use an old-fashioned hanging paper calendar), I'm reminded of how late the High Holy days are this year. Erev Rosh Hashanah is not until Sunday September 29th. Let me be one of the first to wish you and your family a Happy New Year, filled with sweetness and peace. I also hope to see many of you at our luncheon in honor of Rita Rubenstein on September 8th.

Have a safe and enjoyable Labor Day weekend.

Steven Warshavsky

A Few Reminders:

1. Send in your 2019-2020 membership papers (page 11).

4. Send in your New Year's card order.
5. Watch the mail for the High Holiday ticket order form and Memorial Book order form.

Temple Isaiah Book Club Thursday, October 17th, 7:30pm "Shanghai Refuge" By Ernest G. Heppner

The unlikely refuge of Shanghai, the only city in the world that did not require a visa, was buffeted by the struggle between European imperialism, Japanese aggression, and Chinese nationalism. Ernest G. Heppner's compelling testimony is a brilliant account of this little-known haven. (Amazon)

"The author describes in detail the sights and sounds of his adopted environment, the mingling of Jews and many nationalities, the choking stench and the humidity, the decadent, exotic underworld of criminals and beggars, the terror of air raids and Japanese guards, the rampant poverty and disease. The general tone, however, is positive, even inspiring, and behind all the experiences lurks a sense of adventure and simple good luck."—Association of Jewish Libraries Newsletter (Association of Jewish Libraries Newsletter)

"Ernest G. Heppner's Shanghai Refuge fills in the fragments . . . of this little-known Jewish community. . . . His story is an odd mixture of defiance, courage, endurance and survival. His experience [is] fascinating."—Michael Berenbaum, Director, U.S. Holocaust Research Institute (Michael Berenbaum)

Yom Kippur Discussion

Wednesday, October 9th at 1:00pm

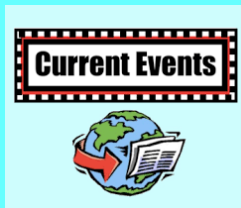

As the high holy days are fast approaching, I know everyone is thinking about what they can say to add meaning to the Yom Kippur break discussion.

The topic for 5780 is "What is the religion we received from our parents, and what is the religion we are passing on to our children"?

Like all Jewish questions, it raises only more questions. Do we practice Judaism or are we simply Jews? And what is the difference? Is cultural Jewishness a real Judaism? And what does it all mean to the next generation? Where does our generation fit into Jewish history? Where are we going? What will our children inherit? And, of course, where will our grandchildren be?

Lunch & Learn
Thursday, September 19

Ben Zoma's advice reinforces the idea that this world is NOT as it seems. Sometimes the world seems like a confusing messy place, as if the world is filled with pain, or sadness, or ugliness. But, as ben Zoma hints, this is only a matter of perception. If we choose to approach life and the world differently, it can be what we want it to be. It all depends on our attitude. So much of life comes down to the choices that we make, and the way in which we choose to measure success and failure.

I look forward to a beautiful wedding and being surrounded by my sweet and loving family. I can't think of a better blessing than that. There is so much to be grateful for.

Arlyn and I wish each and everyone of you a year ahead filled with many joys, radical growth, amazing adventures, lots of love and of course a multitude of blessings.

Shanah Tovah U'metukah – Wishing you a sweet New Year.
